

Huxley To Lecture Tonight

Noted Biologist Will Speak On "Possibilities Of Life"

Dr. Julian Huxley, F.R.S., will deliver the first of this year's Beatty Memorial Lectures tonight at the Sir Arthur Currie Gymnasium.

The lecture tonight will be on the subject "Possibilities of Life." The topics on November 1 and 5 will be "Possibilities of Mind" and "Possibilities of Man." The entire series is on the general theme of "Science and Possibility."

Dr. Huxley is one of the leading biologists of our time and has done a great deal through his writings and lecturing to advance popular knowledge of modern biological science. Many of his works deal with the philosophy of science and the relation between modern science and ethics.

Dr. Julian Huxley

Perhaps the work for which Dr. Huxley is best known is as Director-General of UNESCO from 1946 to 1948. He said at a press conference Monday that he thought UNESCO had worked out as he and the other founders had visualized it. At the time there were two possible approaches to the problem of building up international cooperation in the scientific, educational and cultural fields. These were to concentrate on a few striking projects or to take on some work in each aspect of the problem. Although the results of the first method might have been more spectacular, Dr. Huxley feels that the more generalized approach was the proper one. Now that UNESCO is ten years old there is more room for big striking projects.

The titles of the lectures are to be interpreted as covering the possibilities and limitations of life, mind and man. Here, Dr. Huxley pointed out that almost every evolutionary trend in the biological field comes to an end eventually. He said that in the cultural field this situation does not exist, since "cross-fertilization" of cultures is a possibility.

The lectures have proven a popular attraction for the first time this year. The registrar's office has distributed over 3,000 tickets while the capacity of the gym is 2,700 at best. However, some seats are reserved for students who will be admitted free on presentation of their students' identification cards. Also it is expected that many tickets should be adequate.

Due to the widening job being done on Pine Avenue the entrances of the gym will all have to be approached on foot and those attending will have to contend with rock and rubble.

senior trials this year. Only persons who have attended these trials can take part in the intercollegiate tour.

This Friday a Harvard team will debate against McGill on the subject "Resolved that this house would vote for Eisenhower." This is the second debate in the "On Thursday" series; due to the Beatty lectures this event is being held on a Friday.

Shohet Postpones Censure Petition

Organizers of the petition to censure Premier Duplessis for his stand on grants to universities, agreed tonight to postpone the meeting until after the McGill Student Society President, Morie Shohet, sees Mr. Duplessis.

A petition containing over 750 signatures demanding a Student's Society meeting this Friday to "discuss" the premier's stand, was presented to Shohet only yesterday afternoon.

Shohet agreed to report back to the Student Society, soon after his meeting with Mr. Duplessis, and definitely before the N.C.C.U. meeting on Nov. 14.

Shohet said, "I think it's wise that the petition was revoked because unified action on the part of all Quebec universities is their best hope for a positive reaction for provincial grants. Any independent action on the part of McGill at the present time, would only serve to undermine, at this stage, any possible satisfactory solution to this question."

The petitioners insisted that McGill neither compromise its basic position nor accept anything that would lead to a short-term policy for dealing with the basic policy.

Youth Forum Debates On Ideal World

by Phil Singer

Under the sponsorship of the United Nations Club, a World Youth Forum was held last night in Moyses Hall. This Forum was the first major event of the season for the UN Club.

Students of eight different regions of the world took part in the discussion, entitled "The World We Want". The panel spoke about the ambitions, needs and economic opportunities of the different races.

David Franklin, president of the UN Club, introduced the panel and Prof. George Gailin served as chairman.

In his speech, Mr. Franklin told of the difficulties met in choosing the cultural regions to be represented, and gave the background of each speaker briefly.

The first speaker was Bernard Chidzero, who talked of Africa as "a laboratory of new democratic experiments."

Improvements Necessary

Roy Heenan, representing America, pointed out the immediate improvements necessary to achieve a better world. The Eastern Europe Spokesman, Bill Wilmont, stated that an exchange between countries was needed "to enrich culture, traditions and everyday life".

Emmanuel Riklis, speaking for the Hebrew culture, referred to the Bible as the source of the instructions to create a better world.

The Indian culture delegate, Dr. Gurunath Rao said that "the means to achieve a better world, are as important as the ends".

Distinguished Prelate Speaks On Importance Of Religion

On Tuesday afternoon in Moyses Hall, a gathering of students and visitors heard an address by the distinguished Anglican Bishop Lakdasa DeMel of Kurunagala, Ceylon. He spoke on "Christianity and Other Religions", stressing the importance of co-operation between religions as a means to better East-West understanding.

The Bishop who read Philosophy, Politics and Economics at Oxford, is ending a two-month Canadian tour with a three day Montreal visit.

In his talk he first investigated the reasons for the mistrust which certain Asian groups hold for the West. One of the primary reasons, he pointed out, was the attitude of superiority which many Europeans displayed towards Eastern cultures and peoples citing as instances the Crusades and the Inquisition. He also pointed out that these conditions hardly exist today and that "Christianity in S. E. Asia is there to stay."

Having pointed out some of the grounds of misunderstanding between the different religions, Bishop DeMel stated that "we must adopt a more serious attitude towards Buddhism and Hinduism" the two greatest religions of S. E. Asia. "For only through understanding can the Christian make himself understood."

In conclusion Bishop DeMel said that the religions of S. E. Asia would have to acquire a 'modern outlook' so that eventually there might be a 'crossing of the river' and that Buddhism and Hinduism might prove compatible with democracy, and all the political and social benefits we in the West have come to associate with it.

We are indebted to the Faculty of Divinity for arranging this most interesting talk, and especially, of course, to Bishop DeMel himself for giving it.

Debating Trials End Today

No Strings Attached

Lest we be misunderstood, we should like it known that the McGill Daily is in absolute accord with the actions of the united front of this province's universities in their proposed scheme in the Educational grant question. The necessity and even the advisability of concerted action on the part of both French and English university students is here proclaimed.

But we respectfully submit to all and sundry that McGill University is in an especially crucial financial condition. And while we agree that provincial grants are required and should be accepted with open arms by this university, we feel that the acceptance should be on the basis of "no strings attached."

We mean that even though we accept the grants from Premier Duplessis this should by no means prevent us from entertaining every offer of federal education aid. We say this despite the ridiculous allegations of our Premier that these grants constitute an unwarranted intrusion of the federal government into a field of provincial jurisdiction. Does this stand of Mr. Duplessis not constitute an abrupt reversal of a decision to allow the family Allowance scheme into the province? This piece of social legislation is definitely within the provincial sphere, yet to refuse it, the Premier would have invoked the wrath of the great masses — the very basis of his support.

Of course, all the above goes to prove is that Duplessis is capable of navigating a very tenuous course. But this is not our point at the moment. The issue at stake is the very future of this great University of ours.

Although Mr. Duplessis has, in the past, met the challenge of federal aid by grants even more generous (in certain circumstances) than those of Ottawa, we must make it clear that in accepting grants from him, the only important provision is that the freedom and integrity of this institution should be maintained inviolate. This is the only honourable position open to us.

O' Canada

The recent disturbances in Quebec City have brought to a head the old problem — that of the French Canadian fear of "assimilation".

French-Canadian culture, its defenders scream, is in danger of being submerged. This fear has always appeared to have little basis in reality, but it has become too good an election slogan for M. Duplessis to give up.

There have been no indications that French-Canadian culture is disappearing, to warrant the touchy, defensive attitude of the Union National Party. The French-Canadian element is an important one to Canada; its disappearance would be DISASTROUS to the full development of this country. THIS IS A VIEW HELD NOT ONLY BY FRENCH-CANADIANS, BUT ALSO BY ANGLO-CANADIANS. But because people are for all Canada does not mean they are against French-Canada.

There is a proper place for provincial and racial pride, but this pride should not blind any Canadians to their responsibility to their country as a whole. If provincial pride and sectarian interests put a stranglehold upon the development of the whole country, then they are to be condemned.

If, instead of taking a negative viewpoint, and sitting on a well-lined bandwagon waving a banner marked "Quebec for the French", The Union National were to do something positive for the dissemination of French Canadian culture so that it makes a genuine contribution to Canada's heritage and national greatness, they could hold up their heads as Canadian statesmen, and not remain petty politicians.

University Grants

Lead STAR Editorial

No matter what the outcome of the obvious disagreement between Prime Minister St. Laurent and Premier Duplessis on the constitutional correctness of university grants, it must be hoped that the teachers and students of this province will not be the losers by it. The crisis in education continues. Universities everywhere are in financial straits; the faculties are under-manned and under-paid; the students crowd in, in increasing numbers.

Somehow or other, a great national objective must be realized. The potential ability of young men and women must be evoked, their capacities enlarged, their training intensified. Otherwise, Canada as a nation—and indeed Quebec as a province—will be failing in its duty to youth; failing too in equipping itself with scientific, medical, industrial, business and cultural leadership.

Double Grants

It is in these circumstances that Mr. St. Laurent has proposed to double the existing federal grants to the universities of this country, —from $8,000,000 to $16,000,000. To his proposal he attaches only two conditions:

1. The total sum of grants voted for all institutions by Parliament should be shared on a per capita basis of each of the provinces among the institutions of university rank.

2. All institutions recognized as of University rank should be placed on the same footing, and the amount allocated for each province distributed on a per capita basis of the students enrolled in each of the recognized institutions.

Enlightened Step

This is an obviously enlightened and courageous step, for the federal budget is already large. But Mr. Duplessis, standing on the ground he took up years ago, declares these grants to be an unwarranted intrusion of the federal government into a field of provincial jurisdiction.

Mr. Duplessis met this situation by making university grants, equal to, indeed a little larger than, the federal subsidies.

Generous

But this generosity does not completely solve the problem which faces the universities. Their plight is such, the scope of the activities they must pursue grows so greatly, that even doubled grants will not solve the pressing problems of the age. Money from every source is needed—from governments, from industry, and by way of private gifts...

There should be some way of composing the obvious difficulties that exist at present between Mr. St. Laurent and Mr. Duplessis. A conference between them in this city a few years back went a long way toward the creation of a modus vivendi. Another conference on the subject of university education might have a similar happy result, having regard to the fact that the fate of youth is involved. It is the business of public men to find formulae for the settlement of their differences. A formula which would greatly enrich the life of our universities, and safeguard the future of our youth would be well worth while.

McGill Fund Nears Goal

McGill University is already assured of a substantial portion of its new building program, officials of the McGill Fund — 1956 said last night in announcing the fund's new progress total of $3,583,238.

Gifts from distant cities, such as Toronto, Vancouver, Quebec City and New York, helped to swell the mounting total, during the fund's clean-up period.

Included in the new progress total — 58.9 per cent of the fund's minimum goal of $6,000,000 — are amounts ranging from $10 to $500 now being received by mail from parents and other friends of McGill at headquarters of the fund, Suite 030, Physical Sciences Centre, McGill University, Montreal 2.

A fund spokesman said that the new total represented gifts of $145,135 received since Friday's report.

Letters To The Editor

Dirty Players

Dear Sir:

Nothing disgusts me more than students who sign a list to play an interfaculty sport and then fail to appear for a game. Thursday our team was supposed to play an A. & S. team on the Lower Campus. Not one of the other squad showed up. In this case the faculty concerned loses points for interfaculty competition, aside from mixing up the standings in their section. We are an A. & S. team also and have a good chance of repeating last year's triumph. However I am led to believe that in case of a tie for first place in a section the team scoring the most points goes into the playoffs. It is my conviction that the non-showing teams has made a sad mistake in entering if they have not got the desire to come out and play, since so many Engineering teams had to be dropped. If our team does tie for first place we do not have any points scored to show for the unplayed game.

In short let me say that if students sign for a sport, please do not wreck other peoples chances by backing out without notice.

ANOTHER SIDELINE SONG

(tune of "Red and White Sweater")

Put on your Red and White suit,
And get everyone out to root
For the Gaels are coming into town.
Watch the Queensmen hit the clover as the Redmen work them over
Oh we'll mow the opposition down.

This Saturday afternoon at 2 p.m. in Molson Stadium, some 26 men will go out to continue the quest for the Intercollegiate football title which has eluded the grasps of McGill football teams for 18 years. The least bit that the other 7,000 of us can do as students is to be up at the Stadium cheering the Redmen on. A little vocal support can go a long way towards making the Redmen victors once again.

The other day we were discussing the situation of student apathy at our fair university with a few of the peppy fellows. We came to a conclusion as to just what was one of the main causes of this apathy. We decided that the absence of hazing was perhaps the greatest contributor to the lack of school spirit at McGill. Very few freshmen seem to know the McGill cheers and songs. Why, you ask? The answer is really quite simple. No one told them to learn them. At the last home football game when the crowd stood up for "Hail Alma Mater", one of the newcomers asked his friend, "Why is everyone standing up? That's not the National Anthem, or is it?"

So thus we see that if we had hazing we could make the freshmen learn the songs as they do in other colleges. Last year in Kingston upperclassmen were stopping frosh and asking them to sing the Queen's song to recite the cheer. Various penalties, all in good clean fun, were imposed on the frosh that were stuck for an answer. By the time the football season rolled around most of the frosh knew the songs backwards and when they got into the Stadium they really made a racket. So the poor frosh who didn't know whether they were playing the Anthem or not, is really not to be blamed. No one told him to learn the McGill songs, and in college people get into the habit of not doing anything unless they are told to.

Our solution, and you can take it or leave it for what it is worth, is to bring back hazing, if only for a short trial period at first. We don't have to send frosh up the super structure of the Queen Elizabeth Hotel to get a few specks of dust off the 19th floor, or send them to the corner of Peel and St. Catherine and have them rip up the tar covering the streetcar tracks and then polish the tracks with a toothbrush, but keep the fun strictly within the boundaries of the university. Hazing could do a lot for school spirit at McGill just as it has done in other universities.

INTER FOOTBALL ON THE WAY OUT?

Is competitive Intermediate football at McGill going to die out? From the looks of things at the present it very well might. The Indians had seven games scheduled for this season. Three of them were cancelled and nothing was at stake in the other games. It would seem to us that the only reason that the Inters are kept is to provide material and to practice against the Seniors, using the plays of the team which the Redmen will play next. Now we are not against having an Intermediate team and, we think it is a necessity for the above reasons, but most people will agree that this doesn't turn out to be much fun for the players concerned. So once again we offer a remedy for the situation. Why not enter the Intermediates in the Junior QRFU?

They would only have to play an eight game schedule, if the league setup remained as it is, and if they were good enough to win the title, let them represent eastern Canada in the Junior Dominion playdowns. At present the Indians play exhibitions with the Jr. QRFU clubs, or are scheduled to play them. The Inters lost to Eastward by a point earlier this month and had games with the other three teams cancelled because of various reasons. Could be that they were scared of getting racked up by the Red and White before the playoffs which is as good a reason as any for pulling out of the games. Since the Indians can't enter the Ottawa-St. Lawrence conference, let them make an attempt to get into the QRFU. We're sure that arrangements could be made to accommodate another squad in the league, and schedule commitments could also be fixed up. It is some food for thought for the powers that be.

BUSTER BROWN

B is getting to be an unlucky initial for the Redmen. First it was Bulchak who was sidelined, then Behrman was injured, and now the Redmen have lost Brown for an indefinite period. The 205 pound guard had a cast put on his injured ankle and may not see any further action until the Western game. Last season Buster was voted all-star guard and most valuable Redmen lineman.

Tuesday night at the Stadium the McGill Rugger Team tied 3-3 with the Town of Mount Royal.

The 'Town' score came on a penalty kick, while McGill got a try, but missed the convert.

Soccermen Victors — Top Sir George 4-2

by ERIC RENNERT

A sparkling second half offensive added to steady defensive play throughout the game helped the McGill Soccer Team gain a 4-2 come-from-behind victory against Sir George Williams College last night on the Upper Field. This result clinched first place in the Invitational Ottawa-St. Lawrence Conference schedule for the Red and White squad.

This was the first setback for Sir George, and they will probably conclude their games in the runner-up slot. A playoff series between the two top teams is supposed to decide the final Invitational-Conplaydowns, have not as yet been announced officially.

Another effigy was found hanging from a tree on the University of Oregon campus today, but it was in support of football coach Len Casanova.

Yesterday an effigy labeled "Cas, you ain't nothin' but a hound dog" was found hanging with a bouquet of roses in one hand from the same tree.

Today's effigy, clad in a white dress shirt and denim trousers, carried the label "The real hound dog — the guy who hung Cas". Yesterday's incident followed Oregon loss to Stanford 44-7 at Palo Alto, another effigy of Casanova was found in the same tree. But afterwards, a student rally was held, and Casanova was crowned "King of the Campus".

"Arts of Canada" Subject Of Panel Discussion

Tonight at 8:30 four of Montreal's best-known critics will take part in a panel discussion on the arts of Canada, in Moyse Hall. The four are: Sydney Johnson, theatre editor of the Montreal Star; Eileen Kerr, Book Editor of the Gazette; Jean Beraud, book and theatre critic of La Presse; and Thomas Archer, music critic of the Gazette. The moderator will be the well-known writer and commentator for the Montrealer and the CBC, Leslie Roberts. The affair is, under the sponsorship of the Canadian Authors Association of which Constantine Beresford Howe, a professor of English at McGill is president. The Association thinks that the event should be of particular interest to students. The panel is really a sequel to the panel discussion of last March in which Dr. Lismer, Alexander Brott, and Jean Gascon participated. A large audience found that performance of personalities and opinions fascinating. A question period will follow the discussion.

I was asked to express to you and to the members of your Committee the official thanks of the University for a good job well done.

Yours sincerely,
